It has been reported that due to rising temperature, AMU substations are overloaded during working hours of the University.

The continued excess loading on the Electric installations (Transformer, Distribution Panels etc) is causing serious interruptions in the Electricity supply and affecting the academic activities of the Departments of Studies and Offices of the University.

Therefore, all concerned are requested to ensure that air conditioners, electric heaters and other electrical appliances are used diligently to ensure the electric supply to all the departments/offices without any interruption as much as possible.
