Aligarh Muslim University (AMU) is a public university. It was established by Sir Syed Ahmad Khan as Madrasatul Uloom Musalman-e-Hind in 1875, which later became Mohammedan Anglo-Oriental College (MAO College). The Mohammedan Anglo-Oriental College became Aligarh Muslim University in 1920. The main campus of AMU is located in the city of Aligarh in Western Uttar Pradesh in North India. The university campus occupies an area of over 468 hectares. It has total academic staff strength of 2,300 with around 30,000 students. Aligarh Muslim University draws students from all corners of the country as well as foreign countries. In 2017, the University ranked 1 in the top 10 higher education institutions in India by THE World University Rankings.

The Indian Econometric Society (TIES) is one of the oldest and largest bodies of professional econometricians and quantitative economists with more than 2000 members from all over India and abroad. TIES regularly organizes training programmes, workshops and conferences to promote the development of econometric methodology and techniques.

The Department of Economics (established: 1920) is one of the main constituent departments of the Faculty of Social Sciences. It offers courses on B.A. (Hons.), M.A., M.Phil. and Ph.D. in Economics. It attracts the largest number of students at the undergraduate and postgraduate levels. The students come both from within and outside the country. The Department has a long tradition of imparting education and promoting research. Many of its alumni have distinguished themselves in both academic and administrative spheres across the country and the world - a small testimony, perhaps, to the excellence of training that we have managed to give them.

The Department of West Asian and North African Studies was established in 1967 as an independent, interdisciplinary, area study centre at the Aligarh Muslim University. The status of the centre was subsequently converted into the Department of Studies in 1996. The geographic area under study includes Iran, the fertile crescent, Turkey, Arabian peninsula and North African region. Besides multi-disciplinary research, the Department is involved in teaching, training and evaluation. The Department's faculty, represents a variety of disciplines, such as Political Science, Economics, History, Geography, Sociology and Arabic.
