OFFICE MEMO

Dengue is one of the rapidly spreading vector borne diseases transmitted by the Aedes mosquitoes. In recent years, large number of dengue cases and deaths have been reported from various parts of the country including Aligarh. The Aedes mosquitoes are day biter and breed mainly in the overhead tanks, desert coolers, containers, disposable cups, cold drink bottles etc. and also large number of unused hardware articles lying unattended on the rooftops. During monsoon season, these articles become the source of breeding of Aedes vector and thus create ideal situations for transmission of Dengue.

In order to prevent transmission of Dengue on the campus, following steps are required to be taken:

1. Ensure emptying of the desert coolers every weekend and cleaning them properly and scrubbing before refilling
2. Ensure water from AC outlet should not accumulate.
3. All the overhead tanks should be tightly covered by lid. The Old tanks lying unused need to be removed to avoid collection of rain water.
4. Removal of junk materials including unused tyres from the rooftop, backyard of the office premises.
5. All the flower pot trays should be cleaned every week.
6. In case of construction, proper care should be taken, to not allow stagnation of water more than a week.
7. The roof tops should be cleaned for smooth flow of water to avoid mosquito breeding in stagnant water.

All heads of Departments /Offices are requested to direct their Care Takers/staff concerned to take the above steps.
